1 LANGRES — 1 NIGHT

(1 property available)

Le Clos Vauban

After some three decades and an equal number of stars in the Michelin Guide for the Relais & Châteaux property Le Clos des Sens in Annecy, Laurent Petit returns to his homeland of Haute-Marne to open Le Clos Vauban in Langres: The chef wanted to at last place the Grand-Est region in the gastronomic spotlight. On the ramparts of Europe's largest fortified enclosure, Laurent and Martine Petit acquired an historic residence surrounded by an herb and vegetable garden. They continue their devotion to passing on their savoir-faire by working hand-in-hand with the chef, Valentin Loison, and the head sommelier – his partner –, Anaïs Bercegeay, the maîtres de maison, a collaboration that first began at Le Clos des Sens. It is the terroir's essence that is the inspiration for the chef who composes dishes rooted in the local land. A particularly poetic, delicate cuisine is served amid the intimate surrounds of Bulle d'Osier, while more accessible interpretations are on the menu in Mirabelle's dining room. All dishes are complemented by a choice selection of accomplished wines, from Champagne to Burgundy, from Jura to Alsace. Promising a meaningful and rejuvenating stay, Le Clos Vauban offers a handful of rooms and suites, all personalized in their Haussmannian home.

2 SAINTE-SABINE — 1 NIGHT

(1 property available)

Château Sainte Sabine

This magnificent 16th-century residence, still possessing all the elegance that its Renaissance architects so lavishly bestowed upon it, lies outside the petite village bearing its name, on 20 acres of wooded grounds, home to thirty free-roaming deer. Château Sainte Sabine is the very embodiment of Burgundian art de vivre. The building has retained its period woodwork, its French ceilings, and a majestic neo-Gothic fireplace. Venerable furnishings unearthed at antique shops, toile de Jouy, and prints from eras past give the rooms and suites the understated charm felt in the aristocratic homes of yesteryear. At Lassey restaurant, with picture-postcard views of Châteauneuf-en-Auxois, respect for ingredients and inspired culinary combinations set the tone for Chef Thomas Braghi's menu. These moments of wholesome fine dining enhance the pleasure of a walk through the grounds or sunbathing by the swimming pool – all making your stay at the Château de Sainte Sabine an experience of timeless tranquility.
