ROUTES DU BONHEUR Through China’s treasures

Centers of power and culture, Nanjing, Shanghai and Hangzhou hold as much fascination for travelers due to their architectural heritage as the history that has shaped them. In these timeless landscapes, you can expect to see the elderly practicing their Tai Chi, students in trendy cafés, as well as farmers picking tea leaves…

1 SHANGHAI — 1 NIGHT

(1 property available)

A window on China, Shanghai underwent radical change at the turn of the 21st century. Cosmopolitan and pioneering, the most densely populated city in China has a skyline worthy of the largest western megacities. At the mouth of the Yangtze River, its high-tech modern buildings now rival the old art deco buildings. Shanghai is now the crossroads of arts and finance. A fascinating and eclectic city.

Chaptel Hangzhou

Hotel and restaurant on a lake. Pagodas, pavilions and gardens cluster at the foot of the hills surrounding West Lake blend into the countryside itself. This special place has provided a source of inspiration to poets and artists since the Tang dynasty and is now listed as a Unesco World Heritage site. Chaptel Hotel is an oasis just off the West Lake, where you can experience the classic Hangzhou. This authentic Shikumen brick-built mansion has now recovered all its former glory: the decor of the main suites combines traditional Chinese furniture (including traditional wooden shutters) with Art Deco ornaments, such as rugs and lamps, from the period from which the building dates.

Yihe Mansions

Hotel and restaurant in town. Simply cross the threshold of Yihe Mansions and you will be taken back to the Republic of China's past, a time when the country's leaders built their residences in the shade of the maple trees on Yihe Road in Nanjing, the capital of ten dynasties. Its stylish private villas have been magnificently restored and now offer sophisticated, deeply historical rooms and suites, spas, restaurants and even their own museums. Extremely spacious, they boast soft light and greenery throughout; the decor is an elegant blend of traditional artefacts and contemporary objects, with fine wood and precious fabrics. This is a serene environment where you can truly appreciate the beauty of China's culture and history.
