

ROUTES DU BONHEUR Western Canada, escape and adventure in the wilderness

Western Canada remains today an enchanting territory for all wilderness lovers. People come here to walk unobtrusively in the footsteps of the indigenous peoples, cowboys, and oil explorers. You can still observe grizzly bears in their natural habitat, and you can walk for hours or days along maintained trails within primeval forests or along the Pacific coast. You'll discover magnificent landscapes by helicopter, kayak and bicycle, all while having the immutable feeling of being very small within this grandiose natural setting...
