ROUTES DU BONHEUR The Best of the South West: The Devon estuaries and the Cornish coast

From the lands of Dartmoor to the impressive Jurassic Coast, from rolling open country to the rugged coastlines of Cornwall, the South West of England is a paradise for artists, sailors, and botanists. Its landscapes, interiors, and history ceaselessly inspired the poet Thomas Hardy and the novelist Conan Doyle. In this climate milder than elsewhere in the country, there are a host of parks and gardens to visit. Breathe in the scent and spray of the sea while the birds dance on the wind.

(1 property available)

Lympstone Manor Hotel, Restaurant and Vineyard

Hotel and restaurant in the country. Located in the elegant Devon seaside town of Exmouth, Lympstone Manor is a quintessential Georgian manor turned contemporary country house. Driven by the enthusiasm and talent of renowned chef Michael Caines, this haven of peace and tranquillity, set in an exceptional natural environment, is anchored in the salt-rich terroir of a region whose coast gives way to the English Channel. Overlooking the Exe Estuary in South West England, it features luxurious rooms and suites, as well as fantastic shepherd huts for a unique experience set within the woodland, complete with the utmost refinement and privacy. Lympstone Manor also boasts a vineyard. Stretching to the shoreline, it is where Michael Caines celebrates his passion for wine. In his gourmet restaurant, enjoy a cuisine of great maturity and astonishing precision, which showcases the finest products from the sea, foreshore and salt meadows alongside produce from the verdant surroundings.
